Veteran Illinois Newspaper Man in

G. Wilse Tilton, of Catlin, Ill., is in the city on a business trip, stopping at the Occidental. Catlin is a beautiful little town about six miles southwest of Danville, in Vermillion county, and Mr. Tilton is one of the best-known men in his community. He has conducted a general store at Catlin for over thirty years and has taken an active part in the business and politcal affairs of the county in all that

Mr. Tilton enjoys the distinction of being one of the oldest country newspaper correspondents in Illinois, and he has a record of continuous service for one paper that it would be hard to beat. For over twenty-five years he has been the Catlin correspondent of the Danville News, contributing a letter every week over the nom de plume, "Hannah Mariah." In marked contrast with the feminine pseudonym. Mr. Tilton is a man over six feet in height, and large in proportion, and his letters are said to be of such vitality and vigor that many readers of the News take the paper to get the letter from Cat-

Mrs. Etta E. Houk, of Carmel; Mrs. J Feckheimer, of Terre Haute, and Mrs. Anna Cooper, of Greenfield, prominent officers of the Rathbone Sisters, the side degree to the Knights of Pythias, are guests at the Grand. They are in the city to attend the session of the Grand Tribunal of the Knights of Pythias that has been hearing a case in which the organization they represent is deeply interested. For some years there has been talk of the establishment of a Pythians' orphans' home in Indiana and the Rathbone Sisters finally undertook to carry out the project, with the result that they induced the Grand Lodge, K. of P., to appropriate $25,000 for the home. Some of the members of the Knights of Pythias have raised the question of the legality of the appropriation, and yesterday the Grand Tribunal heard arguments for and against an injunction restraining the Grand Lodge ofthe action appropriating the $25,000. The matter will be settled to-day.

GOVERNOR FOR ECONOMY.

Health Board Reports for 1901 and 1902 Will Be Combined.

Governor Durbin yesterday called a meeting of the State Board of Health to consider the printing of the annual reports of 1901 and 1902. The Governor suggested as a measure of economy that the reports of the two years be combined and printed in one volume. The members of the board approved the suggestion, and, although no formal action was taken, it is probable that the two reports will be merged into one, thereby saving considerable money to the State. The Printing State Board of Health.

The suggestion of the Governor does not mean the elimination of vital statistics. LEROY WILLIAMS, COLORED, NAB-BED BY DETECTIVES.

He Helped Steal Bodies of Wallace Johnson and Meredith McMullen from Ebenezer Cemetery.

Leroy Williams, colored, living at 225 Allegheny street, another self-confessed ghoul, was arrested last night by Detectives Asch and Manning. Williams was arrested at the Hendricks cafe on West Washington street, where he is employed.

When taken to the police station and questioned by the detectives he admitted being implicated in robbing graves with Rufus Cantrell and the others. Williams said that he made four trips with Cantrell. In two of these trips they obtained the bodies of Wallace Johnson and Meredith McMullene from the Ebenezer graveyard. On the other two trips, he said, bodies were stolen, but he could not remember

Williams's arrest was the result of further information given the detectives by Cantrell, when the party was investigating in several cemeteries Tuesday. At that time Cantrell accompanied the detectives, and when certain graves were opened he was careful to tell the detectives who were with him when each body was taken. In looking over the graves in the Ebenezer Cemetery and also at Round Hill, Cantrell told of bodies that he had taken and said he was assisted by Williams. In the arrest of William Moffett, the white ghoul, Tuesday night the older members of the rick murder trial, in which Moffett figured

Merrick, a short time before he was hanged, told of the grave robbing expeditions in which Moffett had figured at that time-more than twenty years ago. Merrick said that Moffett had oftentimes taken a horse and carriage and with spades and sacks had driven to the cemeteries at night and robbed graves. He was assisted in this work by Jeff Garrigus, who has the reputation of being a white ghoul. Moffett, while sitting in a cell at the jail, was asked yesterday evening about the Merrick case. He ran his bony fingers through his shaggy beard and laughingly remarked that he had nearly forgotten its history. A few questions served to refresh his memory, and he talked readily of the Him. Merrick murder and his connection with

BUT THAT DOES NOT MAKE HIM AN IMMORAL MAN.

State Superintendent Jones Rules or a Henry County License Revocation Case.

A school teacher need not be considered an immoral man merely because he may find it necessary to leave his wife, State Superintendent Frank L. Jones holds. The point whose license was revoked by J. A. Greenstreet, the county superintendent.

Maston was employed by the township trustee of Honey Creek township to teach the township school. The trustee employed him as a married man with the idea that conditions in the community justified the appointment of a benedict rather than a bachelor. For a time Mr. and Mrs. Maston lived together after the husband's appointment, but on account of domestic differences they separated soon after. Then there was a great deal of talk in the community and considerable speculation as to whether the township should continue to ficers from carrying out the provisions of employ a man who had separated from his wife for any cause, and the matter was finally brought to the attention of the county superintendent. Greenstreet, the superintendent, considered the case and revoked Maston's license. He did not take a radical view of the situation and stated in revoking the license that Maston might be able to get a school after the domestic troubles were adjusted.

The charges filed against Maston were 'domestic inconstancy and unworthiness; desertion of your wife and misrepresentasaid anything to the trustee about trouble with his wife, or that a separation was

In reversing the decision of the county uperintendent, Mr. Jones wrote: "I do not see, even if the charges were true, that the statute gives the right to revoke a license upon the mere ground of desertion of his wife. Domestic inconstancy and unworthiness, together with desertion, would not in mind constitute a charge that might be sustained upon the ground of immorality. If it were shown that the defendant abused his wife and that the desertion came about because of his attachment to other women, or that he used his money in immoral practices such as drunkenness and debauchery. it would doubtless be pertinent to introduce In view of the action of the state superintendent it is probable that Maston will be allowed to finish the year's work in the

CONFERENCE OF PRESBYTERIAN MINISTERS IN THIS CITY.

Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman Unable to Attend and Dr. J. W. Cochran Presides-Subjects Discussed.

A number of Presbyterian ministers of central Indiana gathered in Indianapolis yesterday to attend the Indiana Presbyterians' Evangelistic Conference, held at the Second Presbyterian Church during the day and evening. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, of New York, who was to have presided over the conference, was unable to be present owing to the death of his sister. He sent Dr. J. W. Cochran, of Philadelphia, work, to preside at the conference and also to fill his engagements in Indiana. Resothy of the conference to Dr. Chapman.

The object of the conference is to enliven interest among the ministers and laymon in evangelistic work. All the speches during the day and evening were along the lines of evangelistic work and the good that can be done by securing competent evangelists to hold revival meetings. The General Assembly is placing part of its $100,000 fund into Indiana and effective evangelists are being secured. Much attention will be given to this kind of work in all the districts of Indiana and during the next few months there will be many revival meetings held in the State.

At the opening of the conference yesterday morning there were a large number of ministers present. The Rev. L. P. Marshall, of Franklin, opened the devotional hour. The Rev. D. A. Herron, of the Seventh Presbyterian Church, opened the Bible hour at 10:30 and read concerning the "Origin of the Spiritual Life." He was followed by the Rev. Thomas N. Todd, of Franklin, who read concerning the "Culture of the Spiritual Life."

In the absence of Dr. Chapman the Rev. George Knox, state superintendent of home mission work, who is also in charge of the evangelistic campaign in Indiana, conductd a confession and a consecration service He spoke of the evangelistic work that is being done in Indiana. He said arrangements will be made to cover all the districts in Indiana in a thorough manner. The morning service was devoted entirely to exercises tending to deepen the spiritual

IN THE AFTERNOON. In the afternoon several ministers were heard. Dr. Cochran presided and made an able talk toward the close of the session. There was a discussion of parliamentary plans and methods. The Rev. Shirey, of Richmond, spoke on the "Most Helpful Methods." "Methods That Appeal to Business Men" was discussed by the Rev. Odell and the Rev. Mackintosh. The Rev. Cumming Smith discussed the "Methods That Appeal to Young People." On the discussion of methods on personal work the Rev. H. M. Mount, of Connersville, spoke on "How to Reach the Backsliders." Rev. Robert Bartlett, of Greensburg, spoke on "How to Reach the Moral Man." commitment to Higher Life and Fuller Service" was discussed by Dr. Cochran. He set forth the needs of good evangelistic work and wideawake methods on the part of ministers. He spoke of the preparations made for various events and compared Tuesday night the older members of the them with the preparations for the coming police department recall the famous Mer- of the Lord. "When the Lord is coming our preparations should be complete. We should always be ready," he said. Dr. Cochran spoke of the trivial matters that come up in church work and how much harm they can do. He cited the time when the New York Presbytery was torn asunder by the dispute over the doctrine. He said such disputes must be forgotten and the old ideas of religion supplemented in order to put before the public the need of true religious service. Dr. Cochran said that in praying it is neces-sary to say, "Oh, Holy Ghost, fill me; thrill me." This prayer must not be uttered as some invitations are extended to friends. but with fervent desire for the Lord to help us. "The trouble with most of us is that we are not willing for God to take us as we mean it," he said. "When we pray Him we must consecrate our souls to

ran's Fervent Address. The evening services of the Indiana Presbyterians' Evangelistic Conference was presided over by the Rev. M. L. Haines. The Rev. George Knox made a short address, and then Dr. Cochran was introduced. He spoke on the needs and scope of evangelistic work. Dr. Cochran is a pleasing talker and introduced many little stories of life to forcibly mark the points of his discourse. "Little children can lead us in this glorious work," said Dr. Cochran. "Many things have degenerated in this world. The word 'politician,' in a Greek sense, is a man who loves his fellow-citizens, but that word has degenerated. Revival and evangelist have also degenerated in the words, but the soul will never have the power taken from it. was brought to his attention by the case of He that wins souls is wise. The good old Ray L. Maston, a teacher in Henry county, words that God put into Scripture will never wear out. The only wise man is the soul-winner. No man is wise who does not make it his business to win souls. How to do so is the question

"I saw a sign hanging on the front door of a big factory in Philadelphia which said: Wanted-Hands.' We need hands in our church. We have everything in the way of equipment, but we have no hands to speak The three essential things in life are touch of life, touch of speech or utterance, and touch of strength. We must communicate those touches to others. THE HUMAN TOUCH.

"Jesus made a vast deal of the human touch. He found it necessary to touch people to cure them of their ailments. We want art, music, brains, fire and martyrs, but we also want the touch of life. We must give that touch before we can hope

"The touch of life is the touch of personality, the contagion of personal influence. We should not ask others to do what we are not willing to do ourselves. At the coming revival in Philadelphia next week we will have a capable evangelist to do the preaching and the ministers of the city will sit with the congregation and induce them to acknowledge God.

"Not long ago a man walking on one of the principal streets in New York met a little boy standing on the corner. The little fellow walked up to the man and said: 'Please, mister, can you tell me when Jesus will come along? My mother died. and she said to me that Jesus would take care of me.' The face of the little orphan and his manner appealed to the man. 'Come with me; Jesus has sent me to take care of you,' he said. 'Why didn't you come sooner, because I am so cold and hungry? asked the little fellow. Why don't others come sooner? You should all look for some one to save.

"The touch of speech is another great thing in evangelistic work. We should all talk and induce others to pray and talk to others of the great need of helping others. The touch of strength means that we should not stand off and jeer, but fall in line and make right what is wrong. We mean business in this work. It is the beginning under God of a worldwide movement of soul-saving The keynote is a personal effort to be made by all pastors and church members to win souls,

> He Urges that the Defendant Pay $1,500 and Compromise the Case-Plaintiff Is Blind.

Judge Baker terminated the suit of Albert Bailey against the Southern Railway Company, George T. Jarvis, receiver, suddenly in the Federal Court yesterday. After hearing testimony for three days the court decided that it was useless to continue further and withdrew the case from the jury and urged the attorneys for the defendant to effect a settlement.

The suit was for $20,000 damages for personal injuries which affect the mind of the plaintiff. Judge Baker suggested that $1,500 would be adequate compensation for the injuries received. In withdrawing the case he said it was merely saving time, as, if the verdict had been for the plaintiff for a large sum, he would have been required to set it aside.

ENDEAVORERS WILL MEET

RALLY CONFERENCE OF C. E. SOCIE-TIES SET FOR DEC. 5.

Francis E. Clark, Founder of the Movement, Will Make an Address-Other Leaders to Come.

A meeting of the Indianapolis Christian Endeavor Union was held last night in the Memorial Presbyterian Church, at Eleventh street and Ashland avenue. There were present about one hundred delegates, representing forty societies. Five conference meetings were held in the early part of the evening, followed by an open meet-

The conferences were held for the purpose of discussing plans for the betterment the society. In the open parliament, held from 9 to 9:30 o'clock, a programme of singing, interspersed with prayers, was given. During the meeting the president, Frank Willis, announced the coming of Francis E. Clark. Mr. Clark is the founder of the Christian Endeavor movement. Accompanying Mr. Clark are the Rev. Clarence E. Eberman, field secretary, William Shaw, treasurer, and George B. Graff, agent of the Presbyterian publishing house in Boston. The party will leave Boston about Dec. 1 to make a tour of the principal cities of the country. The members will address all the Christian Endeavor societies in the cities which they will visit. A meeting has been arranged for this city, to be held Dec. 5. There will be two sessions, to which all the members living in the city are invited. A luncheon will be served in the Third Christian Church, at Thirteenth street and Ashland avenue. This will be followed by an afternoon meeting in the same church. At night another meeting will be held in the Memorial Presbyterian Church. At 6:30 o'clock a luncheon will be served, which will be attended by Presbyterian pastors and all officers of Christian Endeavor societies.

Cartoons and Sketches Shown at John Herron Art Institute.

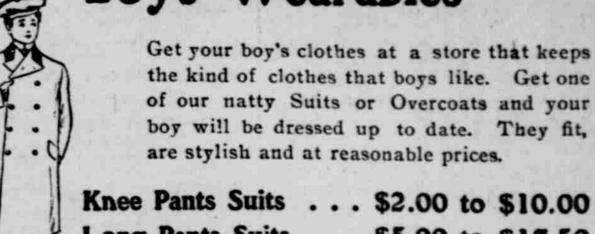

The first annual loan and sale exhibition of the original drawings and sketches of the members of the Press Artists' League was opened in the John Herron Art Institute yesterday. Last night many of the city's artists and persons interested in pictures were present at the exhibition and spent the evening looking at the many sketches in ink, water color, crayon and wash, hung in the two front rooms of the institute building. Mayor Bookwalter and other public officials who are caricatured in some of the sketches and cartoons were at the exhibition and found amusement in the grotesque pictures of themselves. Besides the newspaper artists of this city who exhibited their work, many pictures by artists of other cities were hung. The ictures are to be sold and most of them have already been purchased, but will not be removed until the closing of the exhibition, the night of Nov. 16. The signatures to many of the pictures not catalogued, these having reached the exhibition too late to be included in the printed catalogue, are familiar to the readers of newspapers and magazines. A number of original drawings from books recently published are included in the exhibition as well as sketches by Swinnerton, Williams, Black, Jones. Blashfield, Mariner, Marrick, Allen, Catton and Carlyle. The Indianapolis exhibitors are Frank Bowers, with eleven cartoons and sketches; Ernest E. Burtt, six pen and ink sketches John Gruelle, with more than forty of his crayon and pastel drawings and a number ink and wash drawings; Carl B. Williams, with ten of his posters and portraits; Jack Smith, the Journal cartoonist, with eight sketches and an equal number of cartoons and with two studies of his 'Calamity:" Hubbard has a number of his distinctly original cartoons of public men well known in Indianapolis, among them those of Colonel Charles Wilson and Hugh McGowan, W. F. Heitman, George T. Jones and Paul R. Van Tuyl, other newspaper artists of the city, have numerous drawings in the exhibition. Mr. Van Tuyl's Indianapolis Girl." Heitman's Study of a Head," in water color, and George T. Jones's "Skating Girl" were the most popular of their pictures.
